

The adventure of Isabella Bird

Isabella Bird Introduction

Did you know that Isabella Bird travelled across the world? In this report you will find out all about why she travelled, where she explore and lots more. Read on to find out about Isabella Bird's life.

Where did Isabella Bird explore?

Would you believe that Bird adventured all around the world! She went visited Asia, Europe, Australia, North America and Africa across the pacific ocean by ship. Interestingly, Bird visited Hawaii, Australia, North America, Bagdad to Tehran, Japan, China, Vietnam, Korea, India, Tibet, Turkey and Morocco.

Did you know she ride a horse like a man instead of a side saddle.

What was it like to be an explorer?

Life as an explorer was often hard because they would be squashed in a ship. They would eat same food everyday. If they didn't do what the captain says, they would be hit by the "Cat O Nine Tails". There would be no showers and they would be very hot and sweaty. Normally there was a small room. They might have got sea sick. Did you know that people has a hammock (which is a bed) in your kitchen. The ship would be very wobbly and they didn't have much water. They're toilet didn't have walls and it's on the side of the ship. They're toilet paper though. Also there would be treasure. However, it was also great because they could find new species. They can see new places also.

Why Isabella Bird become an explorer?

Amazingly, Bird was interested in the EP and the Rocky Mountain so she wanted to go somewhere better as it.

Did you know Bird got nothing for a long journey?

Did you know she was 72 when she died?

Early life

Isabella Bird was born on 15th of October in 1831. Intrestingly, she was born in bourough, England, UK. Did you know her full name was Isabella Lucy Bird.