

Ibn Battuta's life

Introduction

Did you know that in one of Ibn Battuta's journey's he got chased by prisoners? In this report you will learn all about Ibn Battuta's life, travels and more! If you want to know more than keep reading!

Text box

Did you know he used boats and other things that he made! Did you also know that before he flew home by a airplane he visited to Mecca, Muslim city then he found a giant bird so he tamed it! To get back home.

What was it like to a explorer

It was hard being an explorer .Usually he had to eat the same food nearly every-day, sadly he got home sick and also got diseases. Also the rooms had no air-conditioning so he got hot and sweaty . Often when he rode his horse he needed to pee on the road and grass. It wasn't then you think to be a explorer because some of them got trapped , attacked and even chased by prisoners and pirates and even robbers ! To sleep he had to travel to a con try to sleep there but many explorer would chop trees to make bowls, fork and spoons to survive but some explorers would die from something bad like how Ibn Battuta died by a black death how ever it was also great because they could collect things they never seen before Also they could discover different places and country or even foods and fruits and new animals also a adventure is like a residential trip but we travel by ourselves for more than 20 or 10 years.

Ports he found

He found the port and waterfront of zeila and the great port of Alexandria in 1326.

When and how died

He died in 1369 when he was 64-65 years old ! Then he died by a black death , which swept across from North Africa

Where went and with who

Fascinatingly he when he was 21 years old! Did you know he traveled to Rihla, West Africa, Southern Africa, Eastern Europe, South Asia, China and North Africa. He traveled with captain James cook

What kind of explorer was he

He was a 2 kind of explorer a Geographer and Muslim explorer

Early life and school

Did you know Ibn Battuta was born in February 25th, 1304. He lived in Tangier, Morocco.

Fact

He said when he was in china the hens in china are bigger than geese in our country .Also he brought a camera with him!

Ibn Battuta's map

Why famous and why travel or wanted to explore

Interestingly he wanted to be a explorer because he liked seeing new people, new places, and experimenting different cultures! Also so he could record his Journey's.

Age when travel and year

Fascinating facts

Surprisingly he traveled further distance than Marco polo! Every explorer has the same answer code , he spent the whole winter in winter also he stayed at India for 7 years working for sultan.